Consumer Financial Services Action Plan

FACTSHEET

ROMANIA

Financial products and services – be they a bank account, a personal loan, insurance or an investment product – play an important role in the everyday lives of consumers in Romania.

The financial products and services that consumers in Romania (aged 15 years or older) are most likely to hold are:

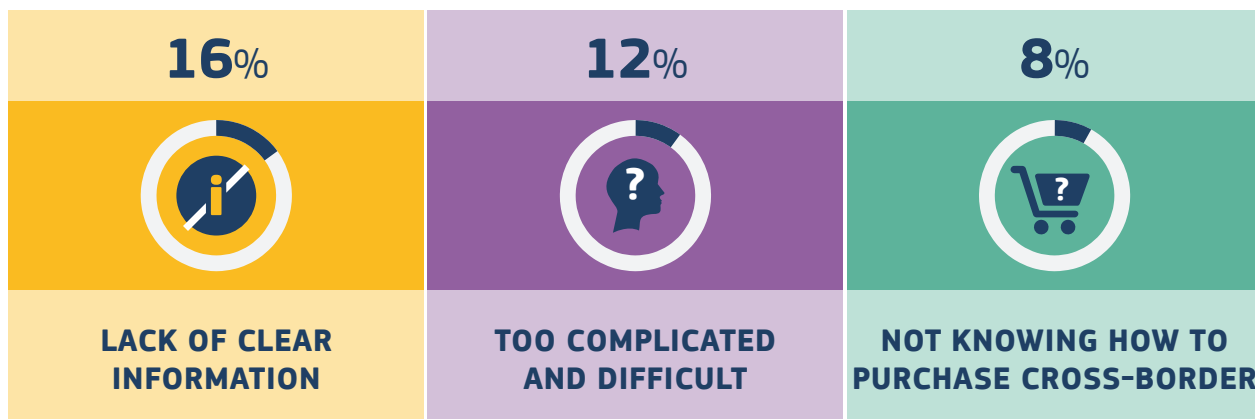

However, few Romanian consumers purchased financial products and services in other EU countries.

Only 17% purchased at least one financial product or service elsewhere in the EU.

When purchasing financial products and services in other EU countries, Romanian consumers are most worried about:

38% mention at least one of these or other barriers to purchasing financial products and services elsewhere in the EU.

48% simply prefer to buy their financial products and services in Romania.

This means that Romanian consumers may not reap the full benefits of the single market in terms of better products, more choice and cheaper prices.

The European Commission has therefore launched an action plan for building a deeper Single Market for consumer financial services.
